

Write the word here:

Which part of the word makes it hard to spell? _____

Why does that part make the word tricky? _____

Picture the word in your head.

- Imagine the letters in the word.
- Picture the hardest part of the word.
- Remember the hard part by making it stand out in your imagination. Try making it jump, glow, wiggle, or anything you'll remember.

How many short letters do you see in the word? _____

How many tall letters? _____

How many vowels? _____

How many sounds do you hear? _____

Picture the word and say each letter.

Now picture the word and spell it backwards!

Flip it!

Picture & Label Sight Word Practice

A packet of resources to help kids practice sight words through visualization, repetition, creative thinking and fun!

Words are from the 101-200 Fry list.

*Great for differentiation and homework!

“Picture Your Sight Words” Activity Sheets

- Practice sight words by creating a drawing around the word to match each phrase/sentence. (If kids incorporate the shape of the word into the drawing it can help them store it in their visual memory.)
- Trace sight words around the border of the picture for repetition.
- Color the letters that represent each sound in the word to provide another visual cue, and to highlight phonetic spelling.

Phrase Labels

- For more sight word practice, label objects around your classroom or home. Kids have fun thinking creatively about objects that would fit each label.
- Just cut, tape and stick!

Extras...

- A blank pretest sheet to help you determine which words to review..
- A cover page: In case you'd like to bind pages together to create a sight word activity journal. (Kids can draw themselves below the thought bubble to personalize!)
- More practice: Copy the sheet with additional practice ideas on the back side of any activity page. *Handy for especially tricky words.
- Just for fun: Word search review pages for each section of sight words.
